

BREAKING MUSIC
COMPOSITION COMPETITION

SYNTAX ENSEMBLE

The cultural and musical organization Syntax Ensemble is proud to announce a composition competition seeking submissions of new scores to be included in its repertoire. Syntax Ensemble will be awarding prizes for compositions most successfully conveying aesthetic clarity in addition to demonstrating command of instrumental writing and electronic programming skills highlighting the performers' technical and expressive skills.

BREAKING MUSIC COMPOSITION COMPETITION

Art. 1. Eligibility

The competition is open to male and female composers of all nationalities, not yet 40 years old by November 30th 2018. It is also open to people belonging to no country: these will be asked to include a declaration of residence.

Art. 2. Submissions

The competition involves three steps.

Step 1

Participants are required to submit two scores for any instrumental group along with a recording of the piece (.wav, .aiff, .mp3, or aac files). Acousmatic pieces and videos will not be taken into consideration. Scores and recording files can only be identified by a pseudonym with no reference to performance location, institutions potentially commissioning these works or musicians involved in the recording. Scores submitted with CDs and commercial DVDs are also accepted and no specific aesthetic orientation is privileged to the detriment of any other. Scores and recordings must be submitted with the documents outlined in art.10.

By the end of a plenary session, the Syntax Ensemble will have selected up to 30 scores for the following step in the contest.

Step 2

Selected scores will be handed over to a contest international committee including:

- composer Ivan Fedele;
- composer Gabriele Manca;
- composer Alessandro Solbiati;
- music promoter Gabriele Bonomo;
- musicologist Gianluigi Mattiotti;
- art patron Ralph Fassey.

Submitted scores can only be identified by their pseudonym. The committee will be selecting up to five candidates who will then proceed to the following step in the selection process. The finalist composers' identity will not be disclosed to members of the committee.

Step 3

The five composers admitted to phase 3 are the competition's finalists. They will be asked to write a new piece following the rules outlined in art. 3 and 4. They are strictly forbidden to contact members of the committee for competition-related matters.

The Committee will notify Syntax Ensemble members of any interference: candidates involved in such interferences will no longer be considered for the competition. Committee members will clearly state whether they have any educational ties with the finalists. In addition, they will be required not to express any judgment about the compositions.

New pieces will be performed in a public concert which members of the Committee will be attending throughout the Syntax Ensemble music season. The candidates' names will be displayed in public no earlier than the beginning of the concert evening.

After the concert, the committee will be withdrawing and proceed with deliberation before selecting the competition's Winner.

Art. 3 Instrumental set-up for the final phase

The five finalists will be expected to write a new piece lasting between ten and fifteen minutes for an ensemble made up of at least six musicians, freely selected among the following:

- Female voice (extended from A3 up to Bb5);
- Flute (Piccolo, C Flute, Alto Flute, Bass Flute, Sliding Whistle);
- Clarinet (Clarinet in Eb, Clarinet in Bb, Clarinet in A, Bass Clarinet);
- Violin (acoustic and electric);
- Cello (acoustic and electric);
- Grand Piano (no upright piano);
- Percussion: Vibraphone, 1 tam tam, 1 triangle, 2 suspended cymbals, 2 temple blocks, 5 wooden blocks, 1 snare drum, 2 tom toms;
- Electronics (audio files and/or live electronics).

Electronics receive as much attention as musicians. Through performance of the same score, any one musician may be playing more than one instrument within the limits set in the above list.

Composers must clearly indicate whether or not a conductor is needed. Scores must be digitally typed with music notation software.

Contingent preparation for instruments is allowed within limits. In such circumstances, composers are required to provide a video demonstrating, within a 2-minute time frame, how to prepare each and every instrument with easily available material (amateur quality videos in .mov, .mp4, and .avi formats are accepted).

Musicians can also use such accessory tools as rattles, toys, triangles, small electro-acoustic devices. Candidates will then be asked to provide them if the ensemble runs into difficulties acquiring such material.

Art. 4. Electronics format

Electronics are allowed for pieces presented in the step 1 file as well as for the new pieces composed for the final evening. With respect to the specific use of electronics to be included in scores presented in step 1, composers simply make sure that recordings are included with the score. There is no need to send digital files. Further details on rules for programming electronics will be discussed and agreed upon with finalists by the end of phase 2 of the competition. "Low-fi" electronics are also allowed. The ensemble ensures that all material prescribed within the score is made available; composers make sure it is delivered by post. While the bid is open, further explanations regarding capturing and broadcasting devices may be requested.

Art. 5. Administrative contribution

Participants are required to pay for a 70€ administrative fee prior to the bid's deadline.

Payment can be made to the following bank account:

IBAN: IT45 F033 5901 6001 0000 0157 244

BIC: BCITITMX

Composers from China, Russia and other countries with limited internet access or subject to restrictions in terms of payments abroad, can pay for their fees, tax included, via the PayPal account associated with the syntaxensemble@gmail.com email address. Contribution fees must be sent in euros.

Bitcoin or other crypto-currency payment is strictly forbidden.

Participants are asked to attach copies of bank transfer receipts.

Participation fees are non-refundable.

Art. 6 Attendance of selected finalists at the final concert

Finalist composers are not required to attend the final concert.

Participants must pay for travel and hotel expenses. The ensemble administration provides support for candidates requesting official invitation documents needed to help funding their trip.

Art. 7 Application submissions and announcement deadline

The participants' files for Step 1 of the competition, along with the signed and completed application, must be submitted via web (dropbox link, wetransfer, google drive, ftp space, etc.) by June 30th 2018 at 11.59 pm to the coordinazione@syntaxensemble.com email address.

Files not complying with the rules will not be considered for the competition.

Composers must provide all digital, audio and video material needed for proper broadcasting within the time limits set by this bid. Selection results will be communicated by e-mail once the selection phase has reached its conclusion.

Art. 8 Competition calendar

Composer candidates will be asked to take note of the following deadlines:

- June 30th 2018: application submission;
- July 31st 2018: communication of participants selected for step 3;
- January 31st 2019: submission of new compositions scores (electronic components included).

The final concert is scheduled for the 2018/2019 Syntax Ensemble Season no later than April 2019.

Art. 9 Awards

Once the Committee has selected the five pieces, these will be performed at a Syntax Ensemble concert in Milan's Teatro Dal Verme.

The Committee will be assessing the five finalist scores once the pieces are auditioned. At the end of the concert, the Committee will be announcing the competition's Winner who will be entitled to a 2500€ reimbursement covering costs for a new composition for the Syntax Ensemble (though electronics are welcome, they are far from being compulsory). New scores must be submitted no later than December 2019. The piece will be performed sometime during the 2019/2020 Syntax Ensemble season. The Winner will be invited to attend the commissioned piece's premiere performance.
